Founded in 1915 as the Cartographic Group, the first division of National Geographic, National Geographic Maps has been responsible for illustrating the world around us through the art and science of mapmaking. Today, National Geographic Maps continues this mission by creating the world's best wall maps, recreation maps, atlases, and globes which inspire people to care about and explore their world.

I bought a Michelin map for a trip to Scotland but its huge, overhanging my dining room table on all sides. Realizing that it will not work well as an on-the-go map in a vehicle I bought this to use in the car. Very nice quality with coated paper making it water-resistant and tear resistant. I use the Michelin map for pre-trip planning, marking the various sites I want to visit but it will stay in the hotel room to be consulted only there.

Be aware that country is split, with North on one side of map and South on other side. Makes it difficult to see itinerary as a whole.

Well done map; wish it showed some of the less commonly traveled roads. Other than that I'm satisfied.

Love the waterproofing of this map. Very sturdy. I used this for a road trip around Scotland and it worked fine.

Beautiful, easy To read map. But, not every road is on there. I traveled regular roads in the inner Hebrides that are not on this map. Kind of a problem.

My boyfriend and I are traveling to Scotland for the first time and are super excited to take the Nat Geo adventure map with us. It lists all castles and even several archaeological sites that we want to visit. The Nat Geo maps are not easily rippable, which makes my life a lot easier. :)

Great map and quality but some of the road labeled as major roads turned out to be one way and very rough.

This map delivers everything it promises--it is up to date, waterproof and sturdy. It was very helpful to us in finding our destinations when the GPS acted up.
