Another great book by Judy Hanna. She is quickly becoming the guru for senior protection in my mind. Her organization, Seniors Standing Strong, is also an advocate and ally to baby boomers and seniors. This book will educate you on senior rights, programs, benefits, and also alert you to abuse and mistreatment of seniors, some happening right under your nose. Whether you are already over 60 or have a relative who is, this is the book to keep you informed. It also just might help save the life of someone you love or yourself!

I am a middle aged man, with a lot of life's experiences and knowledge, and yet this information felt new and foreign. I have never stop to give thought to any of this, and yet it makes so much sense. If I wasn't careful, I would have read this book with my mouth open the whole time. It's a sad tale, but it's knowledge that needed to be available to the public and now that we know, or now that we can know...let's really do something about it. This book will open eyes to the reality of living as a senior citizen.

What a great book! This author was a speaker at a social services conference on aging in El Paso, Texas recently and was very well received and looked upon as an expert in her field by the social service community. A great resource, a family conversation starter, and an eye opener for seniors and their children who want the best for their parents.

The first book that fully focuses on helping people 60 and over with a bird's eye view of the secrets that have been swept under the rug regarding what happens to people without their consent or knowledge. Learn how to send these professional violators to prison and regain your human rights, your life, and your dignity.
