I bought for my eclectus parrot so he could take it to the hoop and get a little b-ball practice. Worked perfect for this, and now my parrot is a regular Larry bird. No pun intended I.

Our Elf on the Shelf Chippey bought this to celebrate our son playing basketball. The goal and one ball included was the perfect size for our Elf and it turned out to be a great idea and our son loved it. We bought extra baskets from another seller to go with it and it was all so cute. We did use the goal later just to play hoops at the dinner table and it worked great. The suction cup is vital to making goals, otherwise it falls over. The little book it comes with was cute for the Elf part.

I bought this little kit out of curiosity to put on my desk at the office. It's easy to assemble and sticks well to very smooth surfaces. The ball is some kind of foam not plastic and it's not very bouncy. I've had it for a few months and after playing with it for a while the ball is no longer a perfect sphere but it still goes in the basket without problems (other than my aim). Everyone who comes to my desks wants to play with it. Will probably get a few more as gifts for a few co-workers.

it's too tall for me

Goal doesn't stay together very well and the suction cup doesn't work well at keeping the goal in place during play. However, my boys enjoyed playing with it.

The mini basketball hoop is a great product! My 10yr old son was constantly playing basketball with his army guys, wrestling guys and other action figures but without a mini hoop he had created his own by taking a small plastic garbage pail and tossing his mini ball in that. When he got this as a gift from his father it was the best gift he had been given! It would make a great stocking stuffer for Christmas or as part of an Easter basket that has a sports theme.

Cute idea in theory but the suction was incredibly weak so it was practically useless. Every time my friend tried to shoot, it wouldn't make it because the ball would hit the net and the whole thing would fall over. I bought it as a gift for my friend who loves basketball and mini kits are usually cute gift ideas but this was poorly made. It's also not worth the pricey $9, I would avoid it.

Hoop is sturdy and ball bounces consistently. Perfect for shooting hoops in the office and everyone wants to try when they stop by your desk. I bounce the ball into the hoop opposed to shooting like a normal basketball. Only wish I paid $5, not $10 with shipping.
